YOUR CULTURE IN YOUR WORDS.
A TRADITION is a belief or behavior passed down within a group or society. Correct is part of the Brazilian tradition.
Parlendas are small verses full of rhymes, they are passed from generation to generation, usually sung or chanted, they help in children learning.
We make a circle, sit on the floor and start the game, singing a Parlenda, clapping hands with eyes closed.
We use a special flour to cook this dish, then we choose a soup or sauce, we eat both together.

“We are Nigerians and study in a Brazilian school.”
It’s the meeting of the sea with river waters, can be violent and cause waves of 6 meters. Brazilian Pororoca is famous because it’s really big.
It’s a Brazilian fruit, can be eaten like grapes, and is very tasty.
Brigadeiro

Delicious Brazilian dessert, it’s commonly prepared for birthday parties to be eaten with the cake.
Brazil Nuts - Castanha do Pará

The Brazil nut is a fruit of a South American tree in the family Lecythidaceae. In Brazil, these nuts are called "castanhas do Pará." Brazil nuts are an excellent source of dietary fiber and are delicious. Brazil nuts have been harvested from plantations. The fruit takes 14 months to mature after pollination of the flowers. The fruit itself is a large capsule 10–15 cm (3.9–5.9 in) in diameter, resembling a coconut endo carp in size and weighing up to 2 kg.

The Brazil nut tree is native to the Guianas, Venezuela, eastern Colombia, eastern Peru, and Bolivia. It is a large tree reaching 50 m (160 ft) tall and with a trunk 1 to 2 m (3.3 to 6.6 ft) in diameter. It may live for 500 years or more.
Feijoada

Brazilians typically enjoy this hearty meal at midday, accompanied by a caipirinha and followed by a nap. Plan on spending two or three days putting this magnificent dish together. Serve feijoada with steamed rice, braised greens, and sliced oranges for a traditional presentation.
The Independence of Brazil (commonly called Sete de Setembro (September 7th)), is a national holiday observed in Brazil on September 7 of every year. The date celebrates Brazil's Declaration of Independence from the United Kingdom of Portugal, by prince Pedro on September 7th, 1822.
THANK YOU!

Created by L.S.P (Language Support Program) students, and supported by L.S.P teachers Camila Poli, Gisele Barcelos, Osvaldo de Souza, Pamela Gonçalves, and Renata Gimenez.