

A NOT-SO PERFECT ARTICLE ABOUT FRIENDSHIP

I have run into many people who are nice at all times and some that are really mean. If you are looking for new friends, I recommend that you look for people who are nice all the time.

If one has bad friends who are lazy, rude and irresponsible, one could be influenced by them. That is why making good friends are very important.

Friendship is about having wonderful moments with your friends and sticking to them no matter what happens. One cannot just act as if one's friends do not exist. Friends are just like our second family. That explains why we should care for our friends. Some friends will stay with you for a long time. Sadly, some will just be with you for a while and part ways after a time.

Moreover, friendship is a relationship of mutual affection between people. Friendship has a stronger interpersonal bond than an association. Friends are also the people you share your feelings with. They will be right there for you and always be ready to lend you a hand when you need their help. Here are some tips on how to make friends. We should be friendly, pleasant and not arrogant. When people greet you, surely, you must greet them back. Every day, I interact with everyone I meet by greeting them. I am always excited to hear their replies but, usually I do not get any. I understand that everyone is busy and has his or her own things to do, but I do not think it is that hard to return one's greeting.

In the 21st century, life for everyone is more hectic than in the past. All of us are very focused in our work. However, we also should focus on our family and friends rather than our work.

I am certain that everyone has friends. One should be a friend in need to one's friends. Normally, we should immediately give moral or physical support or help to a friend in need. We do not have to wait to be asked. I hope when you have finished reading this article, you will think about how important friendship is. Lastly, one should also remember friendship is not easy to maintain.